Michaela Black, Professor of Artificial Intelligence (AI) at Ulster University, with 70+ publications and £30M+ funding, she has a distinguished track record in teaching and investigating AI usage. For example, she was responsible for leading 45+ staff and 50+ researchers to deliver award winning teaching practices and research facilities. She is an Investigator in the newly announced Northern Ireland Landscape partnership in AI Bioscience. This project aims to contribute to UK's leadership in AI-driven bioscience by advancing health research and innovation. This involves equipping 60 doctoral students with unique expertise in AI and biosciences to drive transformative research across various sectors.
